What do we do?...

We develop unique team-based events, experiences, programmes and solutions for our corporate clients. These may range from outrageous conference fun, to targeted and strategic initiatives that dovetail into a broader business plan. Whether a simple and fun example of teamwork at a conference is the issue at hand, or working to challenge and improve existing cultures and practices to achieve business outcomes, we aim to deliver.

What is our philosophy?...

To work with integrity, innovation and effectiveness. Furthermore, we truly believe that it is people, and not systems alone that deliver genuine innovation and results within organisations. People do this far better in an environment that is conducive to genuine team working and process awareness. The flexibility that we have to design programmes from the purely fun end of the spectrum, to those that are carefully planned strategic interventions, is important. We believe in doing whatever it takes to get great results for our client.

How do we do it?...

By using approaches that are carefully thought out and tailored to suit the needs of each client. Our methodologies may range from exciting and unique experiential challenges and events, to psychological and workshop based approaches. Delivery may take the form of spectacular themed team building events to project based and multi day programmes that address very specific business issues and dovetail into long term strategies. We address in unique ways the issues and challenges, both business and cultural, that people face at work.

What experience do we have?...

We have been creating tailor made events and programmes for our clients since 2003. We are a solidly established company and are widely recognised leaders and pioneers in our field. We are highly specialised with professional and experienced people, a well-proven track record, and the depth of knowledge and experience to underpin our actions.

Each client is unique, with some seeking memorable fun and others more business and outcome focused programmes. In fact, we don't accept as clients all who approach us, as we have to feel that what we do will make a difference.

At what level do we work?...

At all levels within an organisation. We can deliver events for the entire company from the shop floor to the Board of Directors, or design and deliver highly targeted programmes and events for specific business units and departments. We even bring companies and their clients together for amazing experiences. With cross-functional awareness becoming more of an issue, it is common to have integrated events for several business units and departments concurrently.
